I must be really bad on wear and tear on hard drives. Just had my 3rd one go out this year. Admittedly the first two were recycled from older PCs but still. It sucks because the external I was using for backups I gave to my kids. Lost everything this time. Including several months worth of code I had wrote for a game I was working on.

Damn thing doesn't even spin up, and the bios won't even recognize it as a drive. So no chance of recovery it would seem.

Ouch, that sucks. Also, I didn't know you had kids.

Yep, 2 boys and a little girl. Oldest is 8, youngest is 3. It's part of the reason why my activity is so sporadic. The other reasons are work and my personal game project.

And then in my spare time I decided to hop around working on whichever Fable 3 item struck my fancy. Thankfully, I've been uploading some of the partially completed script rewrites I've been doing. So those weren't lost.

ohh...this is bad

check power supply, three disks in one computer (if I understand correctly) it's pretty heavy load on it ps: ..a game?
